

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

IN RE: PHENYLPROPANOLAMINE
(PPA) PRODUCTS LIABILITY
LITIGATION,

MDL NO. 1407

ORDER GRANTING DEFEN-DANT'S MOTION FOR JUDG-MENT ON THE PLEADINGS

This document relates to:

Dunham v. Smithkline Beecham Corporation, C05-159

This matter comes before the court on a motion for judgment on the pleadings filed by defendant Wyeth. Specifically, Wyeth moves for dismissal of plaintiff Claude Dunham's fraud and misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, and conspiracy to defraud claims; counts III(A), IV(A) and V(A), respectively. Wyeth also asks the court to strike certain allegations found in count I(A), plaintiff's strict liability claim.

Defendant's motion is based on this court's August 29, 2005 order dismissing claims of fraud and misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation and conspiracy filed by plaintiffs in sixteen different cases. See Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part Bayer Corporation's Motion, August 29, 2005. The court found that plaintiffs had failed to meet the particularity requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b) for their fraud-based claims. The court also

1 struck certain allegations in plaintiffs' strict liability claims
2 based on insufficient testing and instructions and misleading
3 advertising, claims unrecognized under Florida law. The court
4 declined to strike allegations related to strict liability for 5 warning defect claims, finding that such claims may be cognizable
6 under Florida law.

7 Defendant Wyeth argues here that the claims in Dunham's
8 complaint are "virtually indistinguishable" from, "essentially
9 verbatim" and "identical" to, and "duplicate[s]" of those dis-
10 missed in the court's August 29, 2005 order. See Motion for 11 Judgment on the Pleadings at 3, 4, 5. Plaintiff does not dispute
12 this claim, merely offering arguments on the merits of dismissal
13 - arguments that plaintiffs before him have already made and 14 lost.

15 The question before the court is not whether claims materi-
16 ally identical to those already dismissed should themselves be 17 dismissed. The court has already answered that question in the 18 affirmative, and that answer is now the law governing this MDL.
19 The only question remaining is whether plaintiff's claims are or 20 are not materially similar to those dismissed in the cases
21 relating to the August 29, 2005 order. Plaintiff's response fails
22 entirely to address this question.

23 The court is unable to discern differences between the 24 complaint filed in this case and the complaint filed in those 25 cases already dismissed. In fact, plaintiff's response to defen-
26 dant's motion is in most places word-for-word identical to the

1 responses of plaintiffs to which the August 29, 2005 order
2 pertained.¹ He makes no argument in his response that there is a
3 material distinction between those claims already dismissed and 4 his own.

5 For the foregoing reasons and for reasons already set forth
6 in the court's August 29, 2005 order, the court hereby GRANTS in 7 part defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings. Counts
8 III(A), IV(A), and V(A) are dismissed.² Allegations in count I(A)
9 relating to strict liability for insufficient testing and in-
10 structions and misleading advertising are stricken.

11 DATED at Seattle, Washington this 27th day of February, 12 2006.

13

14 BARBARA JACOBS ROTHSTEIN
15 UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE
16

17 ¹He does make one new argument; that the motion should be 18 evaluated according to the standard for summary judgment rather 19 than for a motion to dismiss. The correct standard for a 12(c)
20 motion, however, is essentially the same as for one brought under 21 12(b). Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 155 (9th Cir. 1989). It is unclear to the court what advantage plaintiff would gain by application of the summary judgment standard.

22 ²Plaintiff embeds in his response a "motion" to amend his
23 complaint, presumably to correct the defects in counts III, IV
24 and V. In its August 29, 2005 order, the court granted 25 plaintiffs' requests that they be allowed to amend their 26 pleadings. The procedural posture of those cases differs materially from that presented here. Those plaintiffs, moreover, did not ultimately amend their complaints to include the claims herein dismissed. The court takes this as evidence that such amendments would be futile.